IMPACT DISCUSSES

TRANSPORTATION ISSUES

The Transportation Association of South Carolina (TASC) is an organization that works to provide quality transportation services. TASC members include regional transportation authorities, municipal transit systems, South Carolina Department of Education, Councils on Aging, Disabilities and Special Needs Boards, South Carolina Department of Transportation (SCDOT), state universities, and other companies.

Recently, Terecia Wilson with TASC spoke to IMPACT members about the needs of transportation in South Carolina. Members learned about the current problems and possible solutions to transportation needs in the future. Members were given the opportunity to ask questions and voice concerns. Dependable and affordable transportation continues to be a concern for self advocates across the state. Wilson encouraged members to speak up about the difficulties they encounter with transportation.

A Real Hero By: Angela Greene

A real hero doesn't need props for doing good things
He doesn't need special abilities to have a purpose in the world

A real hero doesn't need signs on his chest to prove he is one.

A real hero thinks of others while he is climbing up in the world

His abilities come from seeing that people are happy and that they are doing what they love
A real hero doesn't need fake power to make the world better

He just needs himself.

THE LONG ROAD HOME

The Long Road Home is about raising awareness. Annually across the US, people come together to hold The Long Road Home events. This campaign started in 2004 in Atlanta, Georgia to highlight the Olmstead Act. One June 22, 1999, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled the individuals with disabilities must be provided services in integrated settings. The Long Road Home strives to highlight the meaning and importance of Olmstead, in which people with disabilities were expressly given the right to live in and receive services in the community. Long Road Home is a civil rights movement. People should not be locked away or segregated because they have a disability.

IMPACT SC is concerned because now years after the Olmstead decision, many states are still not in compliance. IMPACT is working to bring more awareness to the Long Road Home. A statewide conference focusing on the Long Road Home is planned for 2018.
